

CHAPTER 5

Heroes & Heroines

Anyone that needs to make a lot of money should not go into animal law. It's just not there. Art offered me five hundred dollars a week to research cases. I would have done it for free if I could. I accepted his money because I needed it. I knew when I turned down this path, that my days of financial security may be gone forever. Knowing your purpose in life makes hardship easier to bear. My purpose was to introduce sentient or feeling property and let the results go. I knew whatever the outcome, I had done my part. It was the right thing to do.

I hadn't arrived at this decision easily. Sometimes figuring out the 'next right thing' can be tricky. I used to think it meant doing what someone else told me to or doing what the rules said
